

Build Your Business Brain

Complete prompt library for all three levels

This PDF gives you every prompt you need to build your agent's business brain from the ground up. It's split into three levels. Level 1 is what we cover in the lesson — start there. Levels 2 and 3 are here for when you're ready to go deeper. Each prompt is ready to copy and paste — just swap the bracketed parts for your own details.

The Three Levels at a Glance

Level	What It Covers	Time	What Changes
Level 1 Foundation	Who you are, how you work, what you need help with	5-10 min	Agent stops giving generic answers, starts personalizing
Level 2 Strategic	Business model, clients, products, pricing, team	15-30 min	Agent can draft proposals, prepare for calls, suggest strategies
Level 3 Enterprise	SOPs, decision rules, escalation, content voice	1-2 hours	Agent can handle tasks autonomously and follow your exact processes

Level 1 — Foundation

Do this one first. This covers the basics that every agent needs. After this, your agent will know who you are, how you like to work, and where it can add the most value for you.

The main prompt (from the lesson)

Based on everything you know about me from our conversations, my emails, my calendar, and the interview we did, I want you to create a structured business context document. It should have these sections: 1) About Me — my name, role, background, and current situation. 2) Work Style — how I communicate, my tools, my routines. 3) Current Focus — my priorities, active projects, and goals. 4) How I Want AI To Help Me — the specific tasks where you add the most value for me. 5) My Business — what I do, my products or services, my target audience, and my business model. 6) Communication Style — how I like messages written, my tone, formality level. Write this based on what you already know. Where you're not sure about something, ask me. Once done, save this to your User.md file.

After answering the agent's questions

Go ahead and create the document based on my answers and save it to User.md.

Review what it wrote

Show me what you saved to User.md. I want to review it.

Test the difference

I've got a call with a potential client tomorrow who runs a small e-commerce business. They're struggling with customer retention. Can you prepare some talking points and questions I should ask on the call?

Level 2 — Strategic

Add this after you've used Level 1 for a few days. Level 2 gives your agent the context it needs to help with real business decisions — proposals, pricing, client prep, competitive positioning.

Products and services

Add a detailed Products & Services section to User.md. Here's what I offer: [list each product or service with a one-line description, who it's for, and the price point]. Include which ones bring in the most revenue and which ones I'm trying to grow.

Target market

Add a Target Market section to User.md. My ideal clients are [describe: industry, company size, role of decision maker, budget range, main problem they have]. The clients I don't want are [describe: too small, wrong industry, price shoppers, etc.].

Pricing structure

Add my pricing to User.md. Here's how I charge: [describe your pricing model — hourly, project-based, retainer, subscription tiers, etc. Include actual numbers or ranges]. My minimum project size is [amount]. My sweet spot is [amount].

Your team

Add a Team section to User.md. Right now my team looks like this: [list each person or role, what they handle, and how you work with them]. If it's just you, say that — it helps me understand your capacity. Also mention any contractors or freelancers you use regularly.

Sales process

Add a Sales Process section to User.md. When a new lead comes in, here's what usually happens: [describe your steps from first contact to closed deal — e.g. discovery call, proposal, follow-up, onboarding]. How long does the full cycle usually take? What's my rough close rate?

Competitors

Add a Competitors section to User.md. My main competitors are: [list 3-5 with their website]. For each one, note what they do well and where we have an edge. Also note how we position ourselves differently — what's our angle that they can't match?

Key clients

Add a Key Clients section to User.md. No confidential details, just the basics: [for each — company name, industry, what we do for them, how long we've worked together, anything important about the relationship].

Revenue and growth goals

Add a Goals section to User.md. My current monthly revenue is roughly [amount]. My target for the next 12 months is [amount]. The main bottleneck right now is [describe]. The one thing that would move the needle the most is [describe].

Level 3 — Enterprise

This level is optional and takes real effort. Only do this when you want your agent to handle complex tasks on its own, following your exact processes and rules. Most people get massive value from just Level 1 and 2.

Standard operating procedures

I want to add my SOPs to User.md so you can follow them when handling tasks. Here's my process for [task name — e.g. onboarding a new client]: Step 1: [describe]. Step 2: [describe]. Step 3: [describe]. What to do if something goes wrong: [describe]. Save this and follow these exact steps whenever I ask you to handle this type of task.

Decision rules

Add decision rules to User.md so you can handle routine situations without checking with me: If a client emails asking for a quote under [amount], draft a response with our standard package. If someone reports a problem, acknowledge it straight away and tell them we're on it. If a meeting invite comes in during my focused work hours, flag it but don't decline. [Add your own rules for situations that come up often.]

Escalation rules

Add escalation rules to User.md: Anything involving money over [amount] — check with me first, no exceptions. If a client sounds unhappy or frustrated — alert me on Telegram immediately. If you're unsure about anything related to [sensitive area — legal, contracts, hiring] — don't act, just flag it. For everything else under [amount], handle it yourself and give me a summary afterwards.

Your content voice

Add a Content Voice section to User.md. Whenever you write on my behalf — emails, posts, proposals, scripts — here's my voice: [describe your style — e.g. direct, no padding, conversational but professional, short sentences, no corporate speak]. Here are three short examples of things I've written that capture my tone: [paste 2-3 real excerpts from your own writing].

Weekly rhythm

Add my weekly schedule to User.md: Monday is for [describe]. Tuesday is for [describe]. Wednesday is [describe]. Thursday is [describe]. Friday is [describe]. I don't work on [days]. My best hours are [time range]. I prefer meetings between [time range]. Never put anything before [time] or after [time].

Key contacts and vendors

Add a Key Contacts section to User.md: My accountant is [name] at [company]. My lawyer is [name]. My go-to freelancers are [name — what they do]. When I need [type of work], I usually reach out to [name/company]. No phone numbers or personal emails, just names and roles so you know who to suggest when something comes up.

Keeping Your Business Brain Fresh

Your business brain should grow with you. Here are prompts for common updates:

Quick update

Update User.md: [describe what changed — e.g. I dropped my starter tier, I hired a VA named Sarah for scheduling, my main focus shifted to enterprise clients].

Quarterly review

Let's review my business brain. Show me what's in User.md section by section. Flag anything that looks outdated or doesn't match what we've been doing recently. Ask me about any gaps you've noticed.

After closing a deal

Add this to my business context: I just closed a deal with [company/type]. The pitch that worked was [describe what resonated]. The total value was [amount]. Keep this in mind for similar prospects.

After losing a deal

Add this to my business context: I lost a deal with [company/type] because [reason]. Factor this into future proposals for similar companies.

After learning something new about your market

Add this market insight to my business context: [describe what you learned — e.g. clients in logistics care more about time savings than cost savings, agencies under 10 people rarely have budget for our premium tier]. Use this when helping me with strategy and positioning.

Make it a habit. Every time something important happens in your business — a win, a loss, a new hire, a pricing change, a lesson learned — spend 30 seconds telling your agent about it. Over time, your business brain becomes one of the most valuable things your agent has.